一生的幸福,值得您短暂的等待

There are many things in life that are worth waiting for. It is not the things that come easily, but the things that come after a long and hard wait. It is not the things that are cheap, but the things that are worth the price. It is not the things that are popular, but the things that are timeless. It is not the things that are new, but the things that are old. It is not the things that are big, but the things that are small. It is not the things that are loud, but the things that are quiet. It is not the things that are bright, but the things that are dark. It is not the things that are hot, but the things that are cold. It is not the things that are fast, but the things that are slow. It is not the things that are easy, but the things that are hard. It is not the things that are simple, but the things that are complex. It is not the things that are plain, but the things that are fancy. It is not the things that are common, but the things that are rare. It is not the things that are ordinary, but the things that are extraordinary. It is not the things that are normal, but the things that are abnormal. It is not the things that are usual, but the things that are unusual. It is not the things that are typical, but the things that are atypical. It is not the things that are average, but the things that are above average. It is not the things that are standard, but the things that are non-standard. It is not the things that are conventional, but the things that are unconventional. It is not the things that are traditional, but the things that are non-traditional. It is not the things that are modern, but the things that are post-modern. It is not the things that are contemporary, but the things that are anti-contemporary. It is not the things that are current, but the things that are non-current. It is not the things that are fashionable, but the things that are unfashionable. It is not the things that are trendy, but the things that are anti-trendy. It is not the things that are popular, but the things that are unpopular. It is not the things that are famous, but the things that are unknown. It is not the things that are well-known, but the things that are obscure. It is not the things that are recognized, but the things that are unrecognized. It is not the things that are appreciated, but the things that are unappreciated. It is not the things that are valued, but the things that are undervalued. It is not the things that are respected, but the things that are disrespected. It is not the things that are honored, but the things that are dishonored. It is not the things that are praised, but the things that are criticized. It is not the things that are admired, but the things that are despised. It is not the things that are loved, but the things that are hated. It is not the things that are cherished, but the things that are despised. It is not the things that are treasured, but the things that are discarded. It is not the things that are prized, but the things that are despised. It is not the things that are valued, but the things that are undervalued. It is not the things that are respected, but the things that are disrespected. It is not the things that are honored, but the things that are dishonored. It is not the things that are praised, but the things that are criticized. It is not the things that are admired, but the things that are despised. It is not the things that are loved, but the things that are hated. It is not the things that are cherished, but the things that are despised. It is not the things that are treasured, but the things that are discarded. It is not the things that are prized, but the things that are despised.
